Singapore Banks Q3 2025 Earnings - Maybank Research 2025-10-24: What To Watch In Dbs, Ocbc, Uob

> ## Singapore Banks Q3 2025 Earnings: What To Watch In DBS, OCBC, UOB
> - DBS's 3Q25 earnings (https://sginvestors.io/sgx/stock/d05-dbs/company-announcement) and UOB's 3Q25 earnings (https://sginvestors.io/sgx/stock/u11-uob/company-announcement) are scheduled for release on 6 November 2025, while OCBC's 3Q25 earnings (https://sginvestors.io/sgx/stock/o39-ocbc-bank/company-announcement) will be released on 7 November 2025. (See earnings calendar (https://sginvestors.io/news/sgx-stocks-earnings-calendar))

Sequential Weakness To Remain. NEUTRAL.

- We expect sequential earnings to remain flat-to-negative as faster net interest margin contraction offsets improvements in credit growth and wealth fees. NoII could see upside, especially wealth from low rates and risk-on market conditions. Asset quality should remain benign, with credit costs within or slightly below guidance.
- We think DBS (https://sginvestors.io/sgx/stock/d05-dbs/stock-info) and UOB (https://sginvestors.io/sgx/stock/u11-uob/stock-info) have higher potential for upside surprises from stronger wealth and trading. For OCBC (https://sginvestors.io/sgx/stock/o39-ocbc-bank/stock-info) we look for more clarity amid leadership transition. No dividend surprises expected.

Net Interest Income In Doldrums. Loan Growth To Improve.

- Despite expectations of stabilization post 1H25, sustained domestic liquidity has driven Singapore overnight rate average (SORA) down sharply by -60bps q-o-q in 3Q25. We expect liquidity to be largely parked in HQLA (high-quality liquid assets). Yet, with asset yields declining (1-year T-bills rate of 1.35% in October vs 2.95% in January),
- Net-interest margins (NIMs) are likely to be further compressed. Management focus is expected to remain on preserving net-interest income (NII) momentum. Recall in 2Q25, average NIMs fell -9bps q-o-q, but NII lost just -3% q-o-q.
- On the bright side, domestic loan growth is improving, led by mortgages, SMEs, and construction amid strong property sales and a construction boom. However, regional loan growth, particularly in HK/China, is likely to remain muted.
- CASA growth should remain supported despite falling rates, given Singapore's safe haven status. Loan-deposit ratios (LDRs) expected below 80%.

Non-Interest Income Growth Momentum To Sustain.

- We expect sequential positive momentum in wealth management fees. Low rates and risk-on market conditions should catalyze fixed deposit conversion to higher-yield wealth products and bancassurance. Recall average fixed deposit (FD) mix fell by -0.7% q-o-q in 2Q25.
- Loan fees and transaction fees should see uplift from higher volumes and economic activities. IB&A and brokerage fees should see positive momentum with conducive capital market activities and IPOs.
- Ongoing FX and rate volatility is likely to sustain trading income at 1H25 levels, potentially delivering upside surprises, particularly for DBS (https://sginvestors.io/sgx/stock/d05-dbs/stock-info) and UOB (https://sginvestors.io/sgx/stock/u11-uob/stock-info).

Asset Quality Benign. Capital Management To Improve.

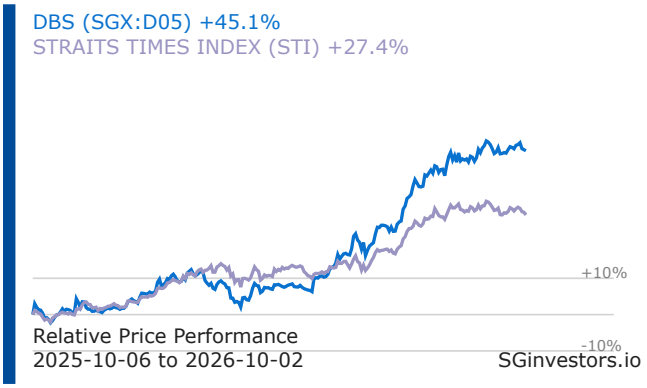

- While there are concerns on the US private credit sector and North Asia commercial real estates, we expect overall asset quality to remain benign. Yet expect higher general provisions to set aside as a cautionary measure for these as well as the pick-up in the US-China trade war. Nevertheless, overall credit costs should remain within or marginally below guidance.
- Separately, operating expenses are expected to remain within guidance as we anticipate efficiency gains from scaling AI deployments.
- On capital, we expect guidance to remain unchanged.
